BACK TO SCHOOL

Friday was moving day at ASES

Education Director Brad Saunder was grinning in spite of the load as he struggled to move a heavy piano out of a classroom at Archie Stouffer Elementary School on Friday.

Although hauling equipment is not part of the director's job description, Saunders wasn't complaining about the physical work. Neither was Dale Robinson, Superintendent of Schools, who was saddled with a vacuum and asked to clean the carpets in another room.

Although it was an incredibly hectic day at the school, few people were complaining. Instead, they were frantically hustling to restore some semblance of order to the school that has spent the past several months as a construction site.

Friday was moving day. It was a day for teachers, administrators, trustees, volunteers and even some students to chip in and haul boxes out of the makeshift classrooms around the county and into the newly renovated school.

"This is a once in a lifetime experience," Saunders chuckled while pushing yet another piano along the dust-laden hallway. Although it still looked more like a construction zone than a school, there was no mistaking the determination to turn things around before the end of the day.

The massive renovations and addition finally -- and barely -- reached the point where the school is again ready to be occupied by students. There's still plenty to be done, but come hell or high water students will be at their desks today.

And while the moving crews moved, the builders kept right on building. Electricians, painters, carpenters and masons hustled throughout the building tending to details that had to be completed before the end of the weekend. With safety being a prime consideration, corridors were being sealed off to prevent students from straying into areas that will continue to see construction activity.

Outside, workers with heavy machinery were levelling and packing the grounds, trying to keep ahead of the paving crew. And again, safety was considered as stacks of building materials were moved out of harm's way.

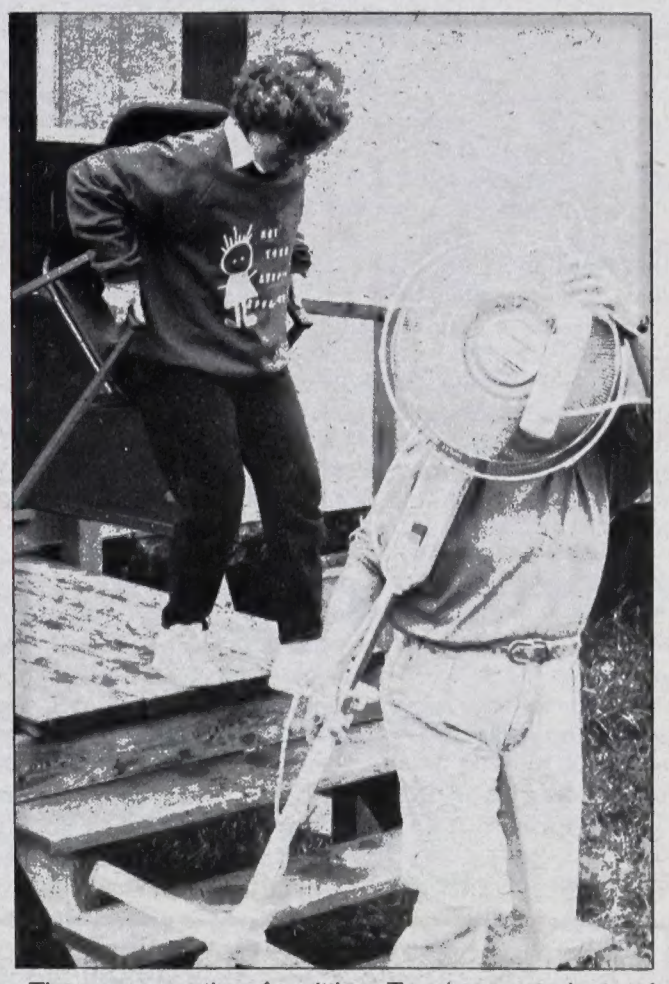
Because of construction delays, classes have been held in the community centre, church halls and gymnasiums for the past month. The long-awaited school addition, it seems, was a lot more than most had bargained for. Not only did it mean the construction of more classroom space, it meant a major overhaul of most of the school. Walls were knocked out, insulation was replaced, lights and ceilings were replaced and most of the carpeting was lifted. The clocks, the bells and the intercom system have all been upgraded. Most of the classrooms were given a fresh coat of paint and new shelving units have been installed.

The movers were greeted with a disappointing picture when they arrived at the school in the morning. The task of converting the construction zone to a schools seemed overwhelming. To their credit, though, they rolled up their sleeves and set to work. By noon their progress was apparent, and a barbecue lunch offered by the board helped lift spirits. At the end of the day, the school was a very different place -- there was still plenty of work to be done over the weekend, but the task no longer seemed insurmountable.

The construction work, in fact, is far from complete. Crews will continue to toil at this element of the project for at least a few more months as they complete new classrooms for the primary division, the new library in the former gymnasium, a new entranceway and school ofrfices, and the double gymnasium. At the moment these additions are either just shells or caught in the turmoil of the construction process.

In the meantime, portable classrooms tucked away just beyond the construction zone will again be used to house some classes. These unfortunate classes will have to wait for their opportunity for yet another move some time after the Christmas break.The younger students will continue to attend classes across town at "the little school."

Everyone chipped in. Teachers, administrators, support staff, trustees and even some students helped out in the move back to Archie Stouffer Elementary School



There was no time for sitting. Teachers got plenty of exercise Friday in the big move back to the school Education Director Brad Saunders was among the many people hauling furniture and supplies through the school.

Junior kindergarten stalled

by Andy Holloway

A decision on the fate of junior kindergarten in this county should wait until the province writes its guidelines, says the school board's administrative council.

"It's the feeling of the administration council that we would like to see what the hoops are before we jump through them," said Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson at the education committee meeting last Tuesday.

Junior kindergarten is now law in Ontario and school boards must offer it to students by next September. However, the province is currently writing guidelines on how boards can delay implementing the program until 1997.

Robinson pointed out that when destreaming was made mandatory the province gave some leeway time to implement it, but that it would have proven more costly for the school board to delay it than to put the program in place. Haliburton county schools destreamed this year as did almost every other board in Ontario despite widespread opposition to the plan.

There are a number of options the board could take if it decides to implement JK next year, said Robinson.

"In a worst case scenario we could meet the law as it stands by implementing junior kindergarten in some of our smaller schools first."

The school board has the power to decide what the boundaries are for its various programs and could therefore decide that the Dorset and Gooderham schools are the junior kindergarten centres. John Munro (Sherborne) said that if only a few students were enrolled in JK at the smaller schools then the board could save money because it would not have to hire additional teachers. It could just combine kindergarten and junior kindergarten students together.

But Lloyd Griffiths (Cardiff) said he would be concerned about placing this extra burden on teachers. He said combining the two programs would be asking a "near-impossible" task of teachers.

There would also appear to be little likelihood of parents not enrolling their children in JK once it is offered.

"It is my experience and the experience of other boards that when a program is available they will use it," said Robinson.

Both junior kindergarten and kindergarten are optional programs, but once enrolled a student must attend. Because the board has offered busing to students in the past it may have to offer busing to junior kindergarten which would boost costs substantially.

Blue machine back on track

Bob Allen's tired expression belies an energy level that's pumped with adrenalin. The long hours of this very difficult campaign are taking their toll, but Lorne Chester's campaign manager is not letting it show.

Allen is the stereotypical political animal. He shows up for the duration of the campaign, pours out every ounce of energy and then disappears into the woodwork.

The work and frustration are draining, but Allen enjoys every minute of it. "It's a high," he says. "I love this stuff."

Allen's Conservative ties come honestly. When he was just 16 years old his father got him involved in the campaign that first saw Bill Scott elected in this riding. He has since participated in six or seven provincial and federal campaigns.

The Conservative campaign is, indeed, a big blue machine. With more than 15 workers directly involved in the campaign, Allen's job is chiefly in co-ordination of the departments. He's also the guy responsible for setting the candidate's schedule, prepping Chester for public appearances, dealing with media and answering the daily barrage of mail.

Although he's a seasoned campaigner, Allen says this federal election is proving to be more of a challenge than previous runs. The Conservatives had a relatively easy go of it for the past 25 years with Bill Scott as the candidate. And while Scott's popularity made the job easy, it also encouraged supporters to grow idle.

"This election is a major transition," says Allen. "From our perspective, we had to put the team back together." The laid-back style of campaigning that worked well for Scott does not play into Chester's hand. The new candidate has to reach out to the voters and earn his support.

After a 25-year skate with Bill Scott at the helm, the Conservatives are now finding they have to fight for every vote in their bid to win this federal election.

Conservatives can't simply count on the support being there. Unlike Scott, Chester has to participate in candidates forums and go canvassing door to door for support. This is the first time in at least a decade that a federal Conservative candidate has done this sort of work in the riding.

Allen is the first to admit that this election is anything but a cakewalk. The campaign has run into a number of problems, not the least of which is the falling popularity of Prime Minister Kim Campbell.

Still, Allen has his sights set on October 25 and he plans to keep pushing right up to the last minute. "You have to keep going down the road until you get where you're going," he says. Whenever the campaign hits a roadblock, he says, they will re-evaluate the route and make whatever changes are necessary. "You have to stop every day and question what you're doing," he says.

Hilda and Munro Scott commit time to Drainville's campaign.

Drainville team draws grass-roots support

Dennis Drainville's campaign is truly a hands-on effort. The Independent candidate is his own campaign chairman, and with a core group of supporters he's selling his merits door to door.

"This is not a well-oiled machine," says campaign worker Munroe Scott, "it's just an enthusiastic group."

Scott is one of about six key people who have committed their time to the low-budget, high energy campaign. Along with his wife, Hilda, Scott is, for the first time, pouring his political expertise into an effort to put someone into office.

Scott's official role in the campaign is to prepare the newsletters that outline his candidate's views on the issues. Since Drainville is not affiliated with a political party, campaign literature must be produced in-house. So far, the Drainville campaign has issued five brief newsletters for circulation throughout the riding.

The newsletter, however, is only one part of his duties. With a relatively small crew of workers, Drainville supporters find themselves doing all sorts of things. Scott helps with the signs and the advertising, he helps out in the office and he acts as a sounding board for the candidate.

Highlands residents may remember Scott from last year's constitutional debate. He shared the stage with Barry Devolin to present an argument against this unpopular package, in debates in Victoria and Haliburton Counties.

Yet, while he agrees with Devolin on many of the issues in this campaign, the retired columnist, biographer and playwright does not agree with Devolin's right-wing solutions.

Good instincts help novice overcome `fringe party' status

Gloria Welsh is the National Party campaign team.

It's 10 a.m. on Thursday and Gloria Welsh is standing outside a restaurant near Dunsford discussing the campaign with a gas bar attendant. He had listened to the radio debate the previous night and was not impressed with the wild statements made by the candidate he believed Welsh was working for.

Welsh had to explain she is not the campaign manager for Charles Olito. Instead, she is working for National Party Candidate Martin Doyle.

This happens a lot, said Welsh. With seven active candidates in the race, people get confused about who is who. The attendant's confusion was particularly frustrating since Welsh is struggling to overcome the "fringe party" stigma that's often attached to new political parties.

This is the National party's first showing in a federal election and it's also Welsh's first involvement in a campaign.

Like most Canadians, she is disenchanted with mainstream political parties. Unlike most, though, she's decided to work towards change.

With a brand new party and a candidate parachuted in from Toronto, Welsh is realistic about her ambitions. She doesn't expect that Doyle will win the election, but she's determined he will have a respectable showing.

By and large, Welsh is Doyle's campaign team. There are a few people working alongside her, but it's Welsh's efforts that have helped her candidate become a factor in the election.

Welsh, an unemployed computer specialist, is pouring her heart and soul into the campaign and it appears to be paying off. Voters and fellow candidates alike are taking notice of what Doyle has to say.

"I do nothing else but this," she says. "This has become my obsession. I have no personal life. This is what I have to do now."

Welsh says she's not in this to gain any sort of favours. "I'm doing this because I believe in what I'm doing."

Like her fellow campaign managers, Welsh is also finding she enjoys the excitement and challenge of the campaign. "Some days I wake up and think it's the stupidest and nuttiest thing I've ever done. Other times I think the country is worth it. I wish there were a lot more people like me out there."

Ironically, Welsh's commitment to the National Party is due in part to a statement from Prime Minister Kim Campbell. Welsh was watching the news one night when Campbell cautioned the public that "if you don't get involved you're going to get the government you deserve," she said.

Welsh took heed of this advice and decided to get involved. She began with a letter-writing campaign to vent her anger over the Senate's scandalous $6,000 raise. Later, a friend convinced her to attend a National Party meeting, and she was so impressed with the party she decided to devote her time to the cause.

Taking on the background work of a campaign is a huge leap for someone whose interest in politics has been that of a casual observer. Prior to this election, Welsh said she would go to the polls on election day, "hold my nose and vote for whoever would do the least amount of damage." She was "so sick of the BS" that she didn't even vote in last year's referendum.

Despite the inexperience, Welsh seems to be doing things right. Much of the success is owed to the candidate, but Welsh's work can not be underestimated.

Welsh says she's not exactly sure what she's doing right. "I'm just doing things right by instinct."

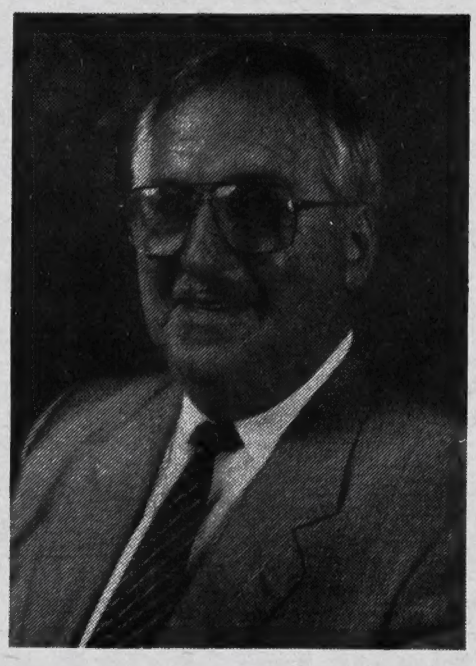
"Part of funeral service is the opportunity to reach out to our community and assist people in a very special way."

A candid talk about funeral prearrangement with Gordon A. Monk.



Gordon A. Monk

"We want to help our community in any way we can. That's why we provide a place for grieving and grief recovery. We have the opportunity to take life's most chaotic moments and help restore serenity to broken lives.

"But we want families to avoid all this if possible. Our funeral prearrangement program is here to make a difficult time easier for families. In fact, it was started by requests from many of the people we serve. People who had experienced making last-minute arrangements and didn't want their family to go through the same.

"To prearrange, all that's necessary is a written record of your wishes which we keep on file as a free service. Or you have the option to prepay for services and merchandise—thus easing financial burdens as well as emotional ones.

"If you would like more information on prearranging, please call us. Funeral prearrangement allows us to help you help your family in a very special way."

Federal Election '93

Each week The Times will ask each of the major candidates to respond to a question. This week's question is: Canadians are skeptical of the intentions and abilities of politicians at all levels. Why should we trust you to follow through on your promises?

Barry Devolin, Reform Party

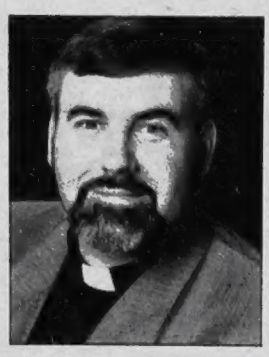
Canadians have good reason to be skeptical of politicians and their campaign promises. We've been lied to and misled so many times before, it's almost impossible to believe anyone any more.

The Reform Party offers a policy which directly addresses this problem - recall. We believe that the primary loyalty of MPs must be to their constituents, not their party leader.

To ensure this loyalty, we believe that people should have the right to recall (i.e. fire!) their elected MPs when they fail to represent the wishes of a majority of their constituents.

Recall - it's like a money back guarantee.

Dennis Drainville, Independent



In 1990 I was asked at an all-candidates meeting whether I would stand by my electorate and my principles, or the party. I said electorate and principles came first.

As an MPP I was chair of caucus, an assistant to the speaker and chair of the Ontario Constitutional Committee. These are all rungs on the ladder to personal status and power within a party. But when I felt principles were at stake and people were not being listened to, I refused to be coerced into agreement and left the caucus and eventually the party.

I advocated parliamentary reform on the election platform and as an MPP submitted a major discussion paper on reform. Aspects of that paper were moved ahead into committee for consideration.

No candidate comes with a guarantee, but I am confident my record speaks for me.

Cathy Vainio, NDP

Some Canadians are now more than skeptical, they are distrustful of politicians. This current of negativity is fueling a backlash against not only those who hold public office, but also anyone who is in some way or another connected to the public sector, either as a beneficiary or as an employee.

I would prefer that the electorate be mindful of the importance of this election and carefully scrutinize all of the parties' proposals and that of the independent candidate. My party's proposals are clearly outlined in our Jobs Plan: Canada Works When Canadians Work.

In regard to my candidacy, I can say that I have never been a pocket-liner or a self-promoter. I pledge that in office I will continue to act on one principle, the democractic principle - the greatest good for the greatest number.

Martin Doyle, National Party

If I have had the opportunity of meeting you while canvassing your town or if you have heard me speak at an all-candidates debate I trust that you will have been able to take some measure of the kind of man I am.

If we have not met as yet then I can only remind you here in print of the primary reason that I chose to run for and put my trust in the National Party of Canada. It is based upon this verifiable fact: Unlike other parties, the National Party does not accept donations from corporations, trade unions or special interest groups. We are funded by individual Canadians - our members and our supporters all across Canada. People power! I can't be bought; I hope that makes me worthy of your trust.

Lorne Chester, Conservative

When we elect politicians we are entrusting them to handle the problems which face our riding and our nation. There are two elements to solving these problems. One is an overall commitment to get the job done, the other is the possible method for achieving that goal. If we, as voters, put our trust in the method because it appears to be more specific, rather than the goal we are often disappointed because real-world economic and political situations tend to dictate the "how" of any solution. That is one of the reasons I haven't made a lot of outrageous claims in this election, nor has my party. I know that solving the problems facing our riding and the country can't be accomplished with old methods - no matter how pleasant they sound - when they didn't work in the past. Look at my track record - a lifetime of involvement, community service, and commitment to getting the job done.

John O'Reilly, Liberal

Early in this election campaign, the Liberal Party released its entire election platform in the document "Creating Opportunity". We carefully outlined in a clear manner our position and our plan of action on a large number of issues. We included an accurate accounting of the cost of each promise. This document forces a Liberal government more than any other Canadian government to be accountable to the electorate. The red book is not going to disappear and our credibility in the next election will be directly based on our success in implementing our promises. The Tories only produced a disorganized pamphelt late in the campaign, the Reform Party ignored the impact on Medicare and Old Age Security, and Dennis Drainville doesn't offer any promises because he can't influence policies as an Independent. The Liberal Party acknowledges the skepticism of the electorate and has shown courage in trying to regain its trust.

Trail Mix

Busy Week

While last week was fairly quiet on the campaign trail, this week should have plenty of action as candidates head into the home stretch. There are three all-candidates meetings this week: Wednesday in Sunderland, Thursday in Lindsay and Friday in Dunsford.

Donations

The National Party is blasting the Reform Party for accepting corporate donations. According to the Nationals, Reformers have accepted donations from such high-powered companies as Campbell Soup, Imperial Oil and Canadian Pacific. Reformers respond by noting that even though the National Party does not accept corporate donations, it has accepted the largest single donation - $4 million from its own president.

Scott lends expertise to Independent campaign

Thus, his support goes to Drainville, a long-time friend who proposes a more socialistic reform.

Although he has always had a profound interest in politics, this is the first time he has actively participated in a campaign. His involvement is rooted in his disgust for the past government and in his approval of Drainville.

Too many decisions are being made by people who are not accountable to the electorate, he says. Not that this is a new trend, but he says it has gone out of control with the Conservative government.

The government is ignoring people's wishes, he says. "The system has to listen. Here's a chance in at least one riding to stand up and be counted."

For the duration of this campaign, Scott and the others are looking at this as a full-time commitment. He says the effort will be worthwhile if his candidate is elected. He says it would be "a shame to not make use of Dennis."

"Yes, it's worth it," he says. If I didn't do it I wouldn't be able to look my grandchildren in the face. It sounds corny, but I have to make a stand."

All polling stations, with few exceptions, provide level access. If the following symbol does not appear on your card from Elections Canada, contact the Elections Canada office in your riding if you need level access.

ELECTIONS CANADA

The non-partisan agency responsible for the conduct of federal elections

Federal Election '93

Liberal team mounts impressive public relations campaign

Rob Drury would love to run for political office but family and financial commitments are the priorities in his life.

"My wife refuses to let me run," he says with a smile. "So, this is as close as it comes."

Drury is Liberal candidate John O'Reilly's public relations co-ordinator in this federal election and he brings 10 years of experience to the role. This is the sixth campaign the self-professed "political animal" has been involved with.

Why does he do it?

"I believe in the Liberal philosophy," the Lindsay area doctor explains. "It's the reasonable middle ground . . . it encourages people to do well, supports business ventures and ensures others don't suffer."

Still, that's just one of the reasons. Another is that he loves the challenge and the thrill of a competition.

"It's fun," he admits. "I like the interaction with local people and the media. It's a game, but it's more serious than a game. It's a competition in which you're trying to beat the other guy."

This election is particularly exciting, he says, because "it's our best shot ever of getting Bill Scott's Job."

When he's not helping out with the campaign, Drury is a physician and Chief of Staff at Ross Memorial Hospital. He's also involved in a variety of community associations and serves on the Lindsay Recreation and Parks board.

With these responsibilities, drumming up the energy to run a campaign is a challenge in itself. A typical day during a campaign starts early in the morning and runs late into the evening. Drury's job is to keep abreast of local and national issues of importance to his candidate and help devise action plans. With strong support from his assistant, Mike Cayley, Drury has mounted the most impressive public relations effort in this campaign. News releases from the Liberal headquarters have kept the fax machines humming at newspapers throughout the riding. He has also helped Cayley organize three significant events thus far in the campaign.

Drury also briefs the candidate on the issues and helps him prepare for public forums. O'Reilly, while effective one on one, does not shine in front of a large audience. Drury says he has been working with the candidate to help him improve the debating skills that are so necessary for the candidates' forums.

Running a campaign in which every minor slip means lost votes is a grueling task. "Every now and then something goes wrong," he admits, "and we can spend the whole day scrambling."

Jean Chretien's visit, for example, was a major headache for campaign organizers. The Liberal leader had planned to visit the riding and the campaign team set out to capitalize on the event. When all the arrangements were made, the office was informed that Chretien would have to by-pass Lindsay in order to attend a function in Peterborough.

The late change in plans meant Drury and Cayley would have to scramble to make the best of the situation. Instead of greeting the leader in Lindsay, they arranged to have a joint reception with the Liberal candidate in Peterborough.

With just two weeks left in the campaign, Drury is not yet showing signs of tiring. He knows this is going to be a very close race and it's impossible to pinpoint where the strongest challenge lies.

"People are pushing very hard," he says, "and we'll continue to push right up until the end."

More profiles on the campaign teams will appear next week in The Times

Editorial

The choice is yours to make

October 25 is the date when voters must decide two things: which of the candidates is best equipped to represent Haliburton County interests, and which party's platform holds the most promise for economic recovery.

In essence, only four of the nine candidates in this riding have a realistic shot at winning: Lorne Chester (PC), John O'Reilly (Lib), Dennis Drainville (Ind) and Barry Devolin (Ref). While we're fortunate to have such a strong field of candidates, this fact makes the selection that much more difficult. It makes an outright endorsement impossible.

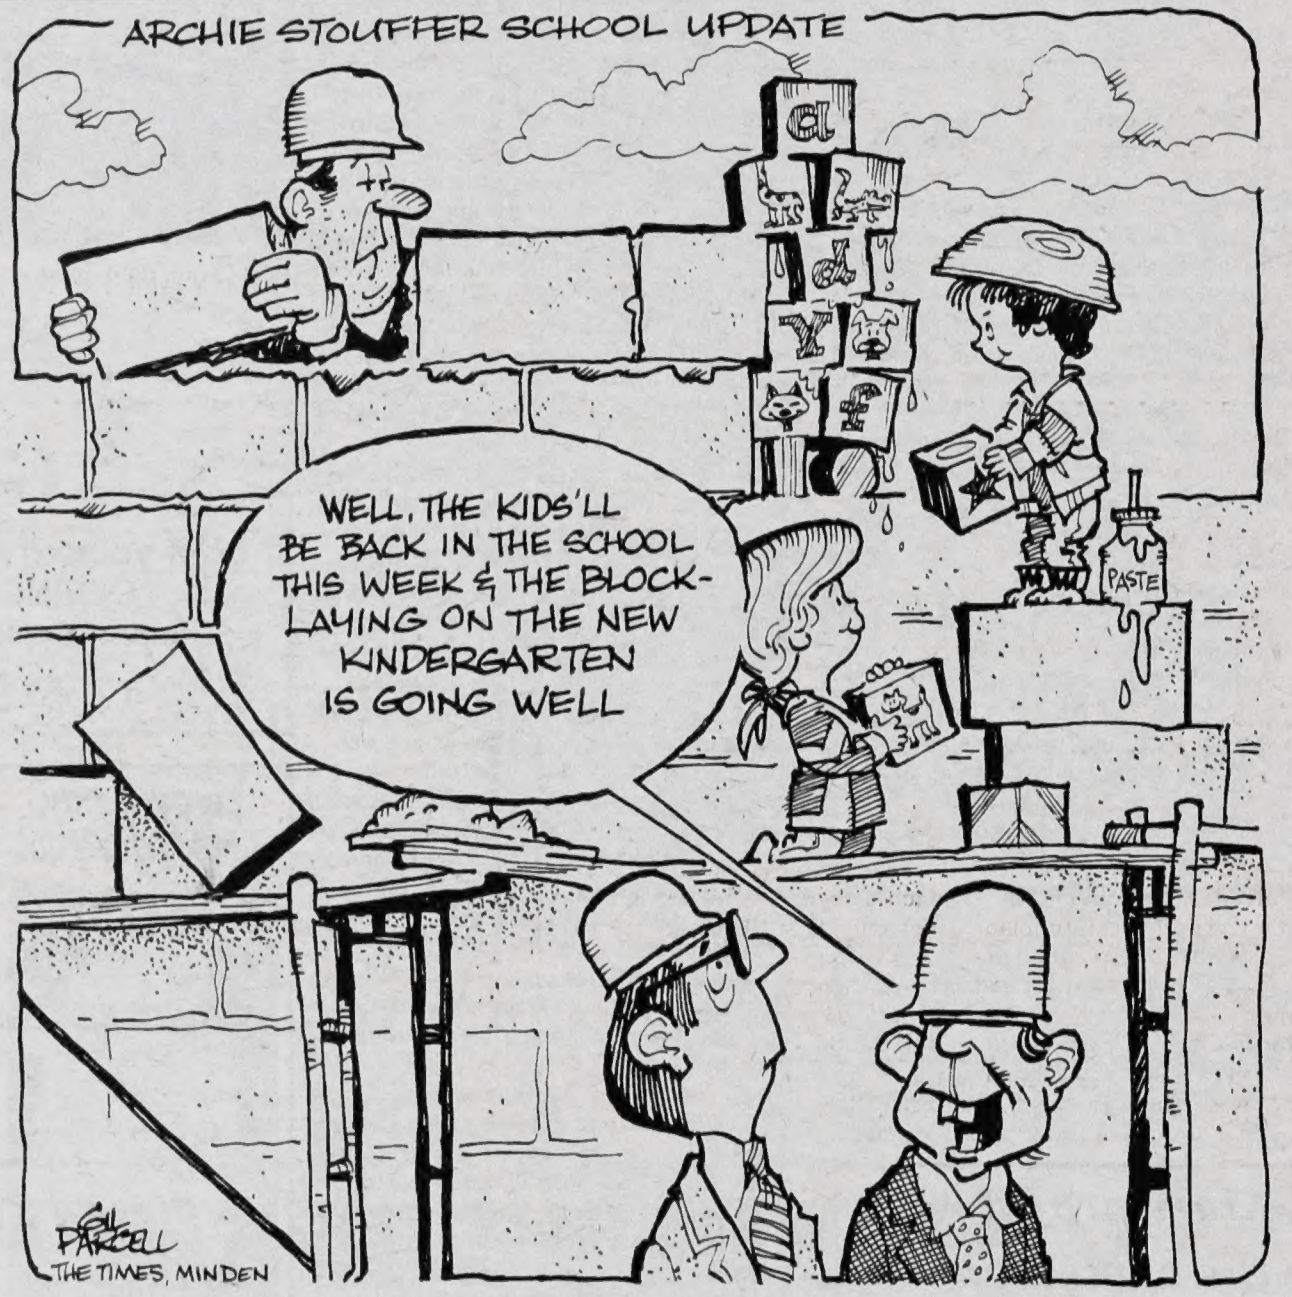
Still, though, we'll give it a try. Here's what we think of the candidates:

Chester is in the unenviable position of representing a party whose popularity has dropped like a bucket of wet cement. The Conservatives' dismal track record under Brian Mulroney has not been forgotten and Kim Campbell has not lived up to her billing as a "fresh new leader." Still, we could forgive all that if Chester had campaigned on his own merits — which he has not. His campaign style has not been that of a fighter, but instead of a follower. A vote for Chester is a vote for Campbell, which is also a demonstration of approval for the style of government we've had for the past nine years. If you want more of the same, put your mark next to Chester's name.

In contrast, O'Reilly is representing the party most likely to form the government. He's a strong candidate who is not afraid to express his personal beliefs. In terms of local representation, though, O'Reilly believes this is best accomplished within the rules of the game — which some contend is impossible. We have to wonder how effective his representation can be considering the tradition of rigid discipline in the three traditional parties. The Liberals' key platform of "jobs, jobs, jobs," is simplistic, but it at least shows their priorities are in tune with Canadians' most immediate needs.

Drainville shows the most promise for local representation. Here's a man who is willing to fight for his beliefs, and his Independent status means party discipline is not a concern. He has a sound understanding of what makes this riding tick and understands the challenges specific to Haliburton County. Still, there's the question of which issues will get top billing. His battle with the provincial government over casino gambling, while impressive, was not a major concern in this riding. We suspect his role at the federal level will be one of reaction to government initiatives, which is not necessarily a bad thing.

Devolin also promises strong local representation and presents the most believable case for a relaxation of party discipline. Devolin is the most solid candidate in the race and is certain to look out for the interests of the riding. Like the Conservatives, the Reform party's priority is deficit reduction. Unlike the Conservatives, Reform policies seem sincere. While we do not embrace many of the rigid, right-wing ideologies, good things might come from this party under a Liberal minority.



Studio Tour earns applause

Editor:

Part of the beauty of the Haliburton Highlands is the people who live here. We who live here possibly take the artisans of the county for granted, but we should applaud the efforts of this warm and friendly group of people who promote this area so well.

The Studio Tour this past weekend is a prime example. The planning and execution of this event during this special time of the year is to be admired. The coverage obviously covered a very large area judging by the license plates and tour buses visiting our towns and villages throughout the county. The visitors on this tour not only visit the artisan studios, but also patronize our restaurants, shops, bed and breakfasts, inns, and resorts in this place we are lucky enough to call home.

To the artisans of Haliburton County we say, "Thank you for sharing your homes and talents with us all. We hope your Studio Tour was a great success for you and we look forward to your next event."

Bloc abusing democracy

Editor:

I am somewhat surprised as to the manner of uninterested and non-issue fashion in which your paper reported the response of Lorne Chester towards the separatist platform being promoted by the Bloc Quebecois.

This party is utilizing our Canadian democratic system and the public purse to advance their cause which would result in the destruction of the Canadian nation. Their purpose has been further evidenced in the national television debates.

Although Chester's purported methodology of dealing with such persons could be questioned, it does not mean that he, you, the audience or I must remain silent to evidence tolerance.

To be blackmailed into silence in the name of tolerance is not consent - it is still blackmail.

Open-mindedness in such situations is often a sign of empty-headedness.

Coalitions do not work well in government

Editor:

Canada is in the process of fracturing. Democracy means the freedom to choose and to speak and that's fine. But when does speaking out become bitching and the right to choose mean believing you know what's best more than the other guy does.

Canadians seem to believe they and not the professionals know what's best for Canadians. Could this be the start of world government, where boundaries are not the issue and groups no longer have common cultural ground?

But who will we follow, who will choose for the masses so we may all lead organized and meaningful lives? All people need to vote, but all people need to realize a fractured vote means a coalition government with reduced abilities and reduced control. The masses actually take charge and not the specialists. Could we really do a better job, or does education, experience and a broad base of access to information mean a better opportunity for the total picture?

Part of the process is trust and if you don't know, or if you're not sure, support the government.

Apology to Sunday hunter

Editor:

I wish to clarify a reference I made in last week's letter to the editor regarding a neighbor target practicing on a Sunday. I did not wish to imply that carelessness was involved. It was obvious during my visit that careful planning and respect for the safety of people, property and wildlife was foremost in the minds of those involved.

The reason for the inclusion was when I consulted what I believed was an authoritative source, I was told that discharging a firearm on Sunday was illegal. I later found out that such is not the case if special (and I might add complicated) regulations are adhered to.

Under these new (to me) facts I regret the inclusion and not only wish to apologize to those concerned, but also to thank them for approaching me with kindness and tact to help sort out the misconception.

Men: the ultimate scapegoats

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

The world has benefited greatly from the Hebrews. They gave us the Torah and Doctor Seuss. They also gave us Albert Einstein and Lenny Bruce; Yehudi Menhuin and Bob Dylan; bagels and lox.

But I think the greatest gift the Hebrews bestowed upon us was the concept of the scapegoat.

You can read about it in the Bible. It tells us that on the Hebrews' Day of Atonement, Aaron selected two goats. One was slaughtered ritually as a sacrifice to the Lord. Then Aaron turned to the other goat and said something like: "You! Look at you! You call yourself a goat? You're a joke! A disgrace to goatdom! Not only that but I hereby saddle you with all the sins and transgressions my people have committed in the past year. My people are now pure and innocent. You on the other hand are a mess. Now get outta here already!"

And the goat was banished. Driven into the wilderness.

Which personally I think is a helluva lot preferable to having your throat slit on an altar, but that's not the point. The point is: the Hebrew ritual gave the world the principle of the "scapegoat" — picking some poor schnook out of the crowd and blaming him, her or it for everything that's bad.

Humankind has been using scapegoats ever since. The English treated the Highland Scots and the Irish as scapegoats. The Nazis did the same to the Gypsies and the Jews.

On a less bloodthirsty scale we all use scapegoats. The Newfie joke, the Mulroney dartboard, the Toronto Maple Leafs — all variations on the scapegoat theme.

Trouble is, good scapegoats are getting hard to find. The Toronto Maple Leafs are beginning to play respectable hockey. Brian Mulroney is mercifully off the front pages and out of our lives. And Newfie jokes just ain't funny.

It is no longer politically correct to wax lighthearted about ethnics, gays or women. Hell, you can get in trouble telling jokes about folks who are short or bal... oops — I mean follically challenged.

As a matter of fact there's a politician in Albany, New York who is trying to get a law passed "banning weight bigotry". If Assemblyman Daniel Feldman has his way, any employer who refuses to hire someone as... oh, say a ballerina or a fashion model or a trapeze artist just because said person weighs as much as and is built like a Dodge Minivan — well, that employer would be subject to prosecution.

As I said, it's getting tough to find a decent scapegoat these days.

But I think I've managed to turn one up. A scapegoat, I mean. I found it in the pages of Harpers Magazine.

It was an ad for a new book by one June Stephenson. The ad copy says "Why do so many boys grow up to be criminals? Whether it's murder, rape or the S&L scandal, crime costs $300 billion a year. Prison inmates are 94 per cent male. Why is crime essentially a male pursuit? Read MEN ARE NOT COST EFFECTIVE: Male Crime in America."

There you have it kiddies. The perfect patsy. No question of race or religion, or custom or belief or short or tall or fat or skinny. Just... man, the fall guy. Half the human race ready, waiting and practically crying out to be pronounced Guilty As Charged.

Hey, don't laugh. It's already happening. The Lingo Police are out there as I write, scouring the English tongue to eradicate every filthy foxhole of male-tainted language. We've got personhole covers in the streets now. We've got chairpersons and fisherpersons and if you think I exaggerate, go look it up.

In your Herstory book.

Man. The ultimate scapegoat.

I'd whine some more but I've gotta go. I promised I'd meet my buddies out in the Wilderness for a couple of beers.

Are the Jays more important?

With the Toronto Blue Jays in the baseball playoffs does anybody in Ontario care about politics? And if the Jays make the World Series doesn't that about solidify the current polling trend (ie. Tories, NDP wiped out in a landslide)?

ABC

There is a growing feeling among voters that the best way to vote is Anything But Conservative. This seems fitting, as the Tories were given power because of the Anything But Liberal vote in 1984. Those who live cheaply, die cheaply.

Fax Appeal

Speaking of the Tories, the local campaign office is having a bit of fun with this competition. In a bid to bolster our spirits -- and their fax count, they're sending out light-hearted faxes. One example is their guide to safe fax which answered such questions as "If I fax something to myself will I go blind?" The answer to which is, "Certainly not, as far as we can see."

Thanks a lot Bob

Editor's note: The following is a Thanksgiving letter to Ontario Premier Bob Rae:

Dear Bob Rae:

I'm so thankful you were voted in. Without you Audrey McLaughlin would be popular. I'm thankful you take money from me. Without you I'd have more money and 100,000 people would have jobs and a good life. This Thanksgiving people aren't eating big turkeys, they're eating the deficit. So when you're eating a big turkey, I hope you eat well!

Fax Wars V: Return of The Liberal

The Tories tried their hardest, but the Liberals are the fax winners for the fifth straight week. The Grits used 15 sheets of fax paper while the Tories managed just eight despite a concerted effort to win late in the week. The National Party sent five to finish a surprising third.

Honest DeeDee

We note in Dennis Drainville's "The Independent Voice", the following: "Consumer warning. This newsletter is propaganda. So is every other piece of election literature that will come your way. We admit it because this is The Independent Voice. We're permitted to be honest." Not exactly the same as the stirring speeches which made Abe Lincoln known as "Honest Abe".

Mystery

The Conservative campaign office in Minden is mystified by recent claims made by a group of Toronto high school students.

Some of the students reported harsh treatment when they dropped in at the office, for information relating to a school project. The office manager, however, says she was very helpful with the students. She said several groups visited the office in the early part of the week and were provided with information and further contacts. She says she can't understand why the students would say they were mistreated.

Hockey's back

It's a slow week for local sports with the soccer and football teams playing in Lindsay, but the hockey season has finally arrived both here and in the big leagues.

Minden, Beaverton square off

September was a busy month for the members of the Minden Lawn Bowling Club.

On September 16 the annual golf tournament and card party was held. The golf tournament winners were Jim Burton, Irene Fuhr, Fred Knight and Harry Terveld. To finish off the day's activities dinner was served at the club house.

The fall annual meeting was held the next day. The new executive is now making plans for the summer of 1994.

Members of the Beaverton Lawn Bowling Club joined the Minden group on September 24 for competition, lunch and presentations. Everyone had a good time.

The Dorothy Webert Memorial Trophy was won by L. Tompkins, M. Sinclair and R. Young. They also went on to win the overall club trophy for trebles.

The Quad series winners were Tom Hurtta, Millie Boskett, Dick Donaldson and Ralph Young. The above team also won the President's Trophy. Congratulations to all the winners.

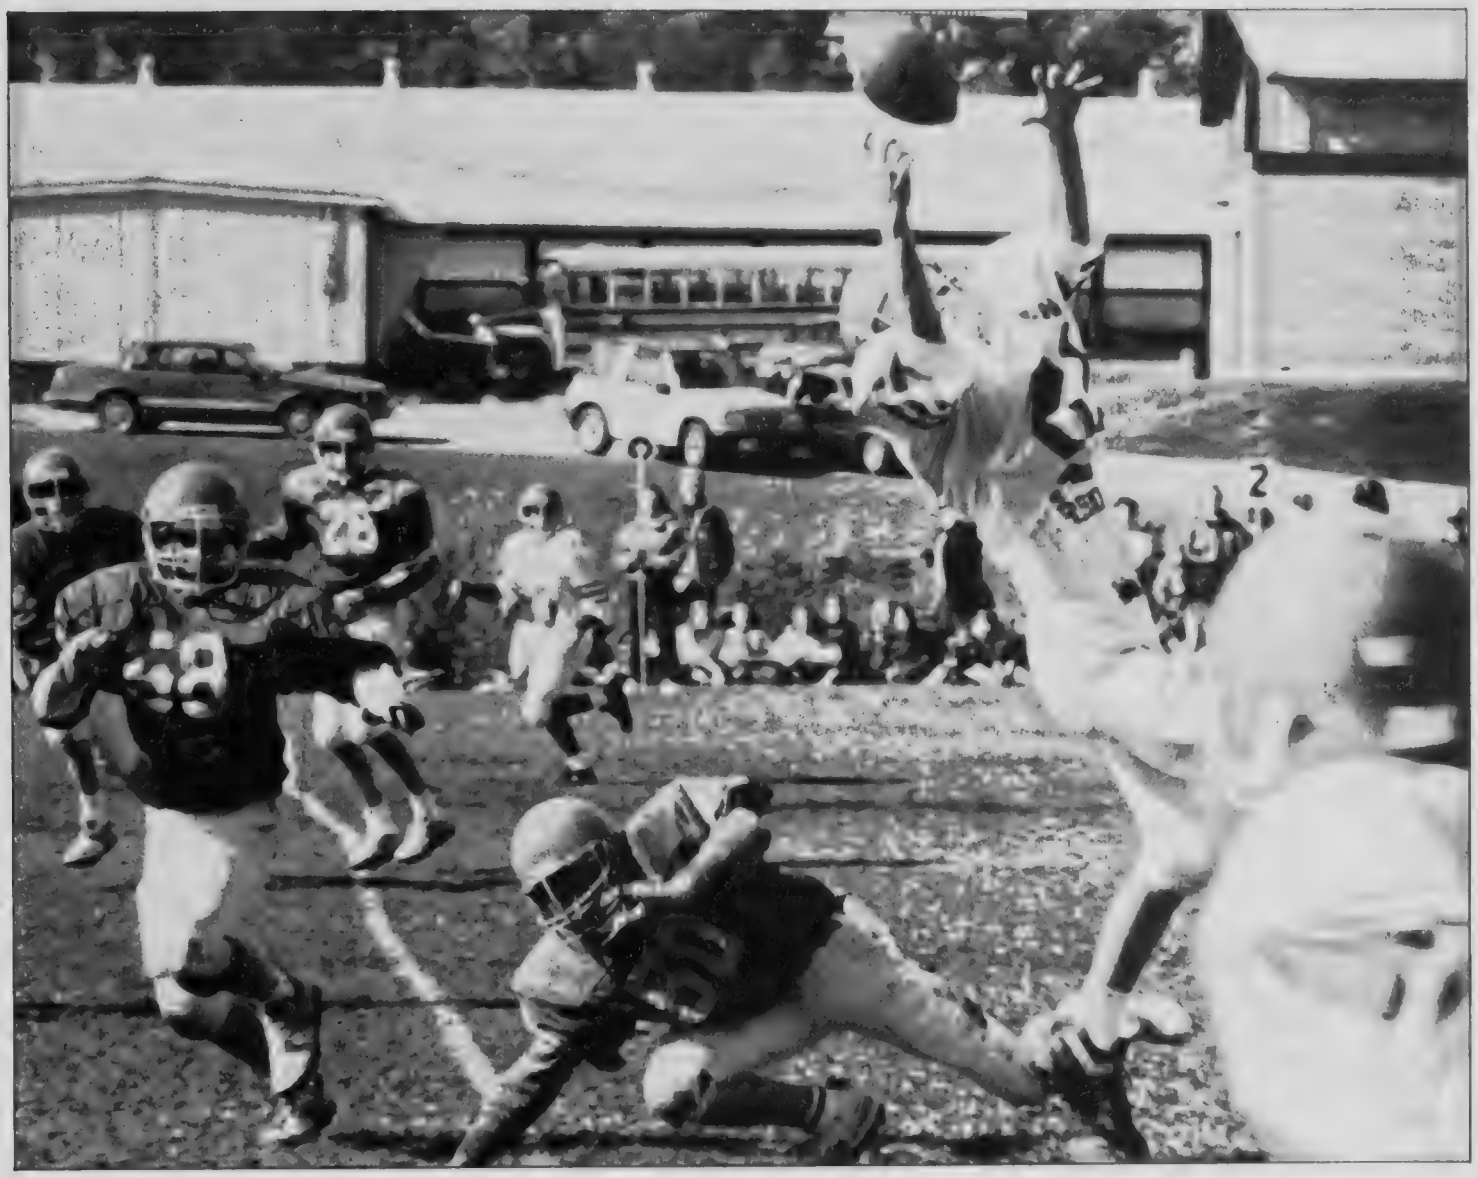
The closing dinner is to be held at Hart Lodge on Wednesday.

Wolves claim 3 county youths

For the second year in a row the Central Ontario AAA Wolves will have a Minden content on one of their hockey teams.

Nick Kulas and Dan Jordan of Minden made the peewee team this year after competing for the atom level team last year. The Wolves play against teams as far away as Brantford and are one step up from the Minden Monarchs. Last year was the inaugural season for the Wolves' organization which draws its players from a huge area stretching from Port Hope to Minden.

Ken Ablett from Wilberforce also plays on the peewee team to round out its Haliburton contingent.



Haliburton's Derrick Durkin stretches for the football, but can't reach it. It didn't matter as the Redmen won the game 30-0.

Juniors pound Spartans, Falcons

by Andy Holloway

The junior Haliburton Highlands Redmen continue to roll along in impressive style winning both games last week in lopsided fashion.

Friday the Redmen were up against the Fenelon Falls Falcons, a team they demolished in the season opener. The result this time was no different, with the Redmen coming out on top 30-0.

Once again tailback Tim Stouffer was a force on offence, and on defence as well. Stouffer started the scoring with a two yard dash early in the first quarter on the opening drive. The convert was good and the Redmen were up by seven, and for all intents and purposes the game was over.

On their second series from scrimmage, Stouffer capped off a long drive with a 12 yard run off the left tackle. The convert was successful again and the Falcons were down by 14.

Stouffer made it a hat trick of touchdowns when early in the second quarter he ran in a major from about 15 yards out. Trying a little razzle dazzle, quarterback Colin Klages passed to Mike Bradley in the end zone for a two point convert.

Down by 22 the Falcons tried a few more times to get an aerial attack up and flying as the ground game was going nowhere. However, a strong defence and some outstanding individual efforts, like the knocked down pass by Derrick Durkin, continually forced the Falcons to punt - at least until their punter was forced from the game with an ankle injury.

With less than three minutes to go in the half the Falcons, actually moving the ball on a third and four, were stuffed up the middle by the Redmen linemen. The Redmen then converted that turnover into another touchdown which was wiped out by an illegal blocking penalty.

Colin Klages' first pass after halftime went 60 yards to Mike Bradley for the fourth and final touchdown of the game. The convert failed, but it was still 28-0. The Redmen later added a safety in the fourth quarter.

The main reason for the lack of scoring was that the coaches sent in the second stringers on offence. The B-team was able to move the ball well, but penalties kept wiping out their gains.

Senior football Redmen win two, stay undefeated

by Andy Holloway

Four games into the Kawartha West season, the senior Haliburton Highlands Redmen remain undefeated.

Last week the Redmen converted two home games into two shut-out wins, blanking the Fenelon Falls Falcons 46-0 on Friday and the LCVI Spartans 20-0 on Tuesday.

In the first game of the week the Redmen were aided once again by Andy Bacon's running abilities as he ran for 193 yards and two first-half touchdowns. Craig Harding added the other touchdown in the second half. Jamie Keefer added two converts.

On their opening drive the Redmen scored as Andy Bacon busted 75 yards up the middle for an early lead. However, unlike other games this year, the Redmen did not walk away with a win.

The rainy weather made the field slick which balanced the two teams out a bit. The Spartans came close to getting their own major score, but could never come close enough. Their defence, however, was strong on the run and had the Redmen on the ropes for the first time this year. But the Spartans were undone by small plays that turned into monster plays like Bacon's run in the first quarter and another run by Bacon on the first play of the second quarter. With a third down gamble on their own 27 yard line Bacon busted up the right side of the line and was almost untouched the rest of the way and the Redmen had their second touchdown.

From there the defence did the rest, with Peter Van Leeuwen and Jim Simmons the leading tacklers on the team.

The one thing coach Tim Davies said he would have liked to have tried was to have Jay Hughes do some more passing, but the weather conditions made that next to impossible.

"The field was really muddy out there so Jay (Hughes) was slipping all over the place," said Davies.

The condition of the field was not much better for Friday afternoon's match against the Fenelon Falls Falcons. But the Redmen ran, they passed, they shut down the Falcons' offence with ease, rolling their way to a 46-0 victory.

Haliburton Redmen senior quarterback Jay Hughes plays keeper with the ball as the Redmen roll to a 46-0 win.

Haliburton finishes second in MDSL

Despite an up-and-down season Haliburton Westside Jug City came within one win of taking the Muskoka District Soccer League championship.

Haliburton caught fire in the league playoffs after finishing a distant eighth, 18 points behind league leading Huntsville Strikers. The two teams met in the final match Sunday, October 3 in Collingwood. However, the Strikers were not about to allow upstart Haliburton the chance to win it all.

Huntsville won the game 4-1 with a strong game which showed why they were at the top of the league most of the season. After falling behind 1-0 Haliburton tied it up with a goal by Chris Holliday-Rhodes. However, Huntsville then turned on their offence and scored three unanswered goals to win the championship.

For Haliburton the road to the playoffs went through some very tough teams. Their first game was against the Collingwood Lakers who had finished second in league play. Haliburton stunned the Lakers with a 1-0 victory on September 26. That win put Haliburton in the championship round for the weekend mini-tournament.

Despite playing a man short Haliburton won their first game 3-1 over the Parry Sound Strikers to set up a showdown with Barrie Youth for one position in the finals.

After a 1-1 tie with Barrie on Saturday the two teams played to a scoreless mini-game on Sunday. To decide the winner a shootout was held and on the strength of three saves by Lutz Haedicke Haliburton emerged victorious. Huntsville, though, proved too much of a hurdle.

Haliburton had earlier received the fair play trophy for receiving the fewest yellow cards of any team in the league.

Seniors beat Spartans in close one

There was one scary moment for the Redmen early in the opening quarter when the Falcons threatened to open the scoring. The Falcons were inside the Redmen's 10-yard line, but Van Leeuwen came up with an interception on the two-yard line.

Buoyed by Van Leeuwen's defensive gem, the Redmen offence went to work and marched all the way down the field before Andy Bacon ran 35 yards for the major after taking a pitch from Jay Hughes.

Early in the second quarter Hughes hooked up with Chris Greenfield for a 65 yard passing major and the rout was on. The senior Redmen even had a successful fake field goal with Hughes running in from 30 yards out.

In the second half the Redmen received touchdowns by Bacon, Van Leeuwen and a field goal by Jamie Keefer.

In the fourth quarter the B-team was sent out and they did an excellent job moving the ball and were rewarded with a touchdown when Chris Dobbins scored on a 12 yard run. Despite his small stature, Dobbins had little difficulty slicing through the holes the Redmen linemen created in the Falcons' defence.

The Redmen are now 4-0 on the season with two games left, both of which are in Lindsay. Winning both gives the Redmen the Kawartha West title and sends them to Peterborough where they hopefully can erase last year's crushing defeat.

Juniors use B-team in wins

The B-team also performed well in the Redmen's first game of the week, a 42-0 squeaker over the LCVI Spartans.

"We put in the second, third and fourth stringers in the second half, but they still moved the ball well," said coach Bruce Griffin who has to be impressed with his undefeated squad so far this season.

Tim Stouffer led the way with two touchdowns and 120 yards rushing and Andrew McKelvey added three touchdowns - all five touchdowns scored by the pair were in the first half as the Redmen rolled up a commanding 36-0 lead.

In the third quarter the B-team went in and while they didn't score they didn't give up any points either. In the fourth quarter the first string offence was called back in to work on their passing game, something Griffin says the team will need if it makes the Kawartha finals.

The passing game seemed to work with Klages throwing one touchdown pass to Darnel Gilbert to finish the scoring.

The Redmen play their final two games on the road in Lindsay. This Friday's game against I.E. Weldon should be the toughest of the two, but if the Redmen win then they win the division. The team is looking to improve on last season's stellar undefeated run which ended in Peterborough in the last few minutes of play.

Don't Agree To Anything Until You've Seen The Used Vehicle Information Package.

Are you planning to buy or sell a used vehicle privately?

Starting on October 4, 1993, the requirements for private sales of used vehicles will change:

Getting the answers to some important questions hasn't always been easy. How many previous owners were there? Are there any loans still outstanding against the vehicle?

These questions will now be answered in a Used Vehicle Information Package.

As of October 4, 1993, private sellers will be required to buy a Used Vehicle Information Package before offering a vehicle for sale. When potential buyers come to view the vehicle, the seller must hand them the information package to read. When the vehicle is sold, the seller must give the Used Vehicle Information Package to the buyer along with the vehicle documents.

When the new owner registers the vehicle at a Driver and Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, the Used Vehicle Information Package must be submitted with the other vehicle documents to complete the transaction. Otherwise, the transfer of registration will be refused.

If a private seller doesn't offer the Used Vehicle Information Package, buyers should ask to see the package before making any decision to buy the vehicle.

The Used Vehicle Information Package can be purchased for $20.00 from any Driver and Vehicle Licence Issuing Office or from the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations 24 hours a day by using a credit card and calling 1-800-267-8847 outside Toronto, or 325-8847 in Toronto. Telecommunication Device for the Deaf is available at 1-800-461-8866 or 326-8866 in Toronto.

Grader garage:

Laxton Roads Department workers Bob Robertson (on the ladder), Dave Lee and John Eason (on the roof) should have the addition to the Township shed finished this week. All that remains to be done is the installation of the door, when it arrives. Township workers are doing the labour themselves and the plans were drawn up free of charge. The addition is being built so the grader and backhoe can be kept out of the weather when they are not in use.

Computer money goes elementary

by Andy Holloway

Funds for new computer equipment will be directed primarily to the elementary system in the first year of the school board's five year computer plan.

Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson recommended to the education committee that just $100,000 of the initial $300,000 be spent on improving the high school's aging computer systems.

Robinson reported that the computer committee had come up with a plan that would see the school update thebusiness labs equipment, which is now considered slow and out of date. The old equipment would not be thrown away, however, it will be used as word processing labs for students in other areas.

"The biggest problem we have is we don't have enough computers to allow all students to go and do something on the computer," said Robinson.

Most of the current computers are for teaching purposes and students do not have ready access to them during school unless they are in that class.

Other potential plans include phasing out the electric typewriters and establishing computers for technical classes for computer aided design.

Trustees agreed with the proposals and said they seem to be on line with what is needed, however Craig Petit (Glamorgan) wondered whether most of the money should be spent on the high school because it is the last chance to update students before they leave the system.

The division of money is partly due to practical reason, said Robinson. The $100,000 to be spent at the high school is now earmarked and ready to be spent while the money for the elementary schools is coming out of the board's reserve funds and the urgency to use it is not as great. Robinson said more time is needed to figure out how the elementary system would benefit most .

County wide testing shows students need more practice

by Andy Holloway

Haliburton county's grade 3 and 6 students did well, but not great on the school board's county wide math testing program last spring.

The students wrote the tests last spring, but marking and analyzing the tests was completed just last month. Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson had set an arbitrary success figure of 75 per cent for the tests which were being used to determine whether students were learning the basics of mathematics.

The grade 3s in the county averaged 77 per cent on their test while the grade 6s averaged just 69 per cent.

The grade 3 rate was considered "acceptable" said Robinson, adding that he was "fairly happy with the results." The students performed well on basic arithmetic questions, but not so well on word problems, a traditional area of concern.

Robinson said there seems to be a "gap between the theory and the practice" of arithmetic and noted that many of the mistakes were missed signs and operations that more practice could solve.

The grade 3s also had problems with measurement and geometry. One of the problems could be that parents emphasize arithmetic, but not the other areas of mathematics.

"Parents want their kids up on arithmetic and so other topics get left behind," said Robinson.

However, he said those two areas are just as important and are in the common curriculum programs proposed by the province.

In some cases entire classes got a question wrong so those classes were obviously not taught in that area. The tests were anonymous so the teachers and schools can not be identified.

Also bringing down the average somewhat was that every student took the test, including those who are identified as special students.

While the grade 3s were slightly above average, the grade 6s were slightly below. The results were not a disaster, said Robinson, but more work needs to be done to get students at all levels up to grade. "It's a message to the whole system that we have to do better, it's not just one grade."

Some of the problems the grade 6s had include dcarrying numbers and decimals. Students were better at handling fractions than they were with decimals which is strange considering that today's students are brought up with the metric system which is based on the unit 10. Students also did not fare well on questions relating to mass and volume, but did

Building permit settled by cash

by Jerry Grozelle

The building permit issue with Camp Inn which was discussed at the September meeting has been resolved to the satisfaction of Laxton, Digby and Longford Council.

The Municipality received a cheque for more than $5,000 from Steve Dasovic, owner of Camp Inn, to settle the question of money owed for building permits.

Deputy-Reeve Mike Riordon, who had publicly questioned the practices of Chief Building Inspector and By-law Enforcement Officer Margaret LeCraw, offered his apology to LeCraw.

"I was laying all the blame on her and I was absolutely wrong on this," Riordon said.

Break-in

A recent break-in at the Township shed netted thieves $2,000 worth of equipment according to Roads Superintendent Bob Robertson. Among the items scooped in the break-in were: chainsaws, a circular saw, a half-inch reversible drill, welding equipment, a six pound sledge hammer and a 100-foot extension cord.

Letter of thanks

The Township of Lutterworth sent a letter of appreciation to LDL Council for not increasing its rates for fire protection for the coming year. LDL has not increased its fire protection rates to Lutterworth while other municipalities providing fire protection to Lutterworth have.

Storage room

The Recreation Committee's report to LDL Council states that the addition of a storage room to the Norland Recreation Centre is a "top priority" to the Recreation Department.

The Committee is recommending that a reserve fund be set up with the purpose of building a 30-by-70-foot addition onto the west side of the recreation centre to be used for storage of tables, chairs and other equipment.

Mike Riordon, who sits on the Recreation Committee said that moving the tables and chairs to various storage areas away from the Recreation Centre is taking its toll.

"If we don't spend the money on a storage room, we'll be spending the money on equipment," he said.

Councillor John Macklem said that he would like to see a long range plan put in place before he would be willing to commit funds to such a reserve fund.

"I take offense to being asked to create a fund for something when we don't have a plan," he said.

Councillor Lynn Peel, who is also a member of the Recreation Committee, said that the committee does have a plan and suggested that Macklem consider becoming a member of the Recreation Committee.

A motion was made by Riordon to have the money raised from the Burton Band Show (about $1,600) be put into a reserve fund for the construction of a storage room at the Recreation Centre and that funds raised from future Recreation Department events be channeled into that fund as well. The motion was passed.

Library update

Two tenders for the construction of a wheelchair accessible ramp to the new library facility were opened at last week's LDL Council meeting.

Although there was some concern that the ramp couldn't be built to the specifications set out in the tender for either of the quotes, Council decided to accept the quote tendered by Northland Construction. The Northland bid of $5,950 was $2,000 less than the other bid.

Council will also be calling for tenders for the renovations to part of the old school building for the new library facility.

A notice in the municipality's tax bills asking for donations to the library fund for the building renovations has resulted in donations of $3,088 so far. Some donors have contributed as much as $200 to the fund.

Sold

LDL Council passed a by-law officially authorizing the sale of the old Municipal Office to Mike Chynoweth of Norland.

Teachers need to drill the basics more well on linear measurement questions. Another area of concern has to be that students did not tell time very well. The students had difficulty determining time changes.

Trustees said one of the problems could be that parents and teachers are not using the same methods of teaching. Wendy Ladurantaye (Minden) said that methods have changed a lot over the years and that if parents were made aware of the changes they would be better equipped to handle their children's questions. Bryan Kernohan (Minden) said another problem could be that parents use imperial measurements at home as opposed to metric which students are expected to learn.

Robinson said the tests would be repeated this spring and that he would have no trouble moving class time around to emphasize the basics if neccesary. "I would have no problem with moving time from environmental science to English and math courses."

Jazz is back

The sounds of the Highlands featured in new composition

John McLeod is back, and this time he's bringing his own quintet and a special treat for a Highlands audience.

McLeod, whose parents live in Haliburton, has composed a special number which is inspired by his feelings for this county. The enchanting number is entitled Tir-nan-og (Land of Heart's Desire).

The quintet will be in Haliburton on October 15 for another performance at the Haliburton Legion. They will also be leading a workshop in the afternoon for students at the high school

The jazz performer was in Haliburton last fall for a performance with the Mike Murley Quartet. The event, which drew a large audience was staged to raise money for the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts.

Over the past year most of McLeod's jazz activity has been with big bands. It has been an especially good year for the world renowned Rob McConnel and the Boss Brass; winning a Grammy award for Strike Up the Band -- an arrangement on which McLeod is featured as a soloist; recording a new album, playing a week in a Toronto club to packed houses; six performances at the Toronto Jazz festival, and a performance in Finland in July

This Friday's performance begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Haliburton Legion hall. Tickets are available at the door or in advance at the Rail's End Gallery. Proceeds from the concert will again go to the Guild of Fine Arts.

John McLeod has had a very good year since his performance here last fall. Now, he's returning with his own quintet and a special composition inspired by the Highlands

Ridgewood Ford to host grand opening

The Minden business community has been buoyed by the construction of the new 11,000 square foot Ridgewood Ford showroom and service facility on Highway 35.

Not only has the building provided additional work for area construction workers, the significant investment in the community is being seen as a positive sign in a time when good economic news is sometimes hard to find.

President and general manager, Larry Moynes purchased Frontier Ford in February of this year. Along with the change in name, Mr. Moynes was committed to providing the area with the best car dealership possible. With that in mind his first task was to combine the service department with the sales office under one roof. Previously the service department was located on Highway 35, a mile north of the present showroom.

The combined facility, across from Prince Street, includes a brightly lit, three car show room, offices for each of his sales staff, general office area, fully equipped parts department, eight service and two wash bays. Refuelling facilities are also available at the gas pumps on the property. The area around the building has been freshly paved, providing vehicle shoppers with a sure footing as they examine the models on display.

Mr. Moynes' approach to the business in-

From the ground up

It is a long way from a hole in the ground to the 11,000 square foot building which has become the home of Ridgewood Ford on Highway 35. Larry Moynes, centre, shared his vision of the structure with Bryan Kernohan, of Kernohan Construction, left, and general contractor Rod Thurston of Rodco Enterprise during a visit to the construction site in early May of this year.

Congratulations!

TO RIDGEWOOD FORD

on the opening of their New Showroom and Service Centre.
We are pleased to have been selected as General Contractor for this project.

volves more than just concern about facilities, however. "We are a customer-oriented business," he commented last week. "Customers today deserve to expect a quality vehicle, backed up by quality service. With that attitude and the facilities offered by this new building, I think that is what we can deliver."

Larry Moynes has spent most of his working life in the car business. He was with Moynes Ford in Lindsay from 1976 to 1988. He then became a partner in a Ford, Lincoln, Mercury outlet in Uxbridge, before the Minden dealership caught his eye. He completed the details of the purchase earlier this year and took over officially on February 8.

"We hope the new building will give people even more reason to shop locally," Mr. Moynes commented. He pointed out that shopping out of town can create extra problems for car owners when they require service for their vehicle.

Asked about his approach to the business, Mr. Moynes said, "We are here for the long-term, not just to sell someone a car once. That means we have to provide the kind of after sales service that keeps the customer satisfied, and hopefully they will come back to us when it's time to buy their next vehicle." He noted, this really wasn't a new philosophy when it came to selling cars, but in fact was the underlying principle which ensures the success of just about any business in today's competitive marketplace.

Backing him up in this are the Ridgewood Ford employees. "We are fortunate to have efficient and knowledgeable staff members who really care about the customer they are serving," he commented. The employees are the front-line, the first contact people have with the business. "We are pleased to have such a dedicated team working for us," he said.

To give everyone in the community an opportunity to see the new facility, Larry Moynes and his staff will be hosting an open house this Friday October 15. Visitors will be able to meet the staff and tour the facilities to get a first-hand look at what the new building has to offer. The open house begins at 1 p.m. and continues until 9 p.m. Refreshments will be provided along with free draws for door prizes and free road atlases courtesy of Ford Canada. The official opening is scheduled to take place at 7:30 p.m., however area residents will be welcome to drop by any time during the day to view the new building.

"We have been delighted with the response we have received from the people in the community," Larry Moynes concluded. "We appreciate the words of encouragement and welcome that have been offered during the construction phase, and we hope every one will take advantage of this opportunity to come out and meet all those involved in this project."

Wedding in the Green

During September, a group of Minden and area residents and friends enjoyed a 19 day excursion to England, Wales, Ireland and Scotland. The tour, organized by Times publisher Jack Brezina, through INTRA Travel in Haliburton, covered over 5000 kilometres, visiting points as diverse as Land's End, England Aviemore, Scotland, and the Ring of Kerry in Ireland, with many stops in between. One of the interesting sites on the tour was a visit to the Blacksmith's Shop in Gretna Green, Scotland. This community became famous in the 19th century when, due to a lack of regulations, it was a haven for eloping couples. Even the village blacksmith was allowed to perform marriages. While the laws have been changed to strip the blacksmith of these extraordinary responsibilities, the site has continued to attract visitors, some of whom have their wedding ceremony performed there. When the Minden group stopped by, they witnessed a mock ceremony with Bob and Joyce Wiltshire, centre, renewing their vows before the blacksmith's anvil. Other members of the wedding party included, Maid of Honour Cathy Thomas, Best Man Stuart Reid, and Mother of the Bride Laura Kirkwood, who was accompanied by her "toy boy" Tom Prentice, appropriately equipped with the traditional shot gun.

Canadian comedy classic brings laughs of recogntion

by Susan Wilson

Rod Beattie, Dan Needles, and their co-creation Walt Wingfield don't need a rave review from me. They've been garnering enthusiastic press and a solid word-of-mouth reputation from coast to coast, for both radio and stage productions, for the past eight years.

If you've been living on another planet during that time, or you're unfamiliar with the delights of CBC Radio — where the three one-act, one-man plays of the Wingfield Trilogy first appeared — then you're missing the joys of a Canadian classic.

Walt Wingfield is an executive who has abandoned city life and bought a 100-acre farm in Persephone Township, somewhere in central Ontario. He writes letters to Ed, a former colleague at his old firm. Each letter forms a brief scene telling a vignette of the trials and tribulations — and resourceful successes — of Walt and his neighbours. Together the letters string together a story that eventually ties up all the loose ends that have been strewn around during the evening.

Needles wrote the letters as a column when he was editor of the newspaper in Shelburne, Ontario, just along Highway 89 from the family farm near Rosemont, where he spent those parts of his childhood that weren't spent in Toronto. (Needles' mother is Dorothy Jane Goulding, who created the memorable children's radio program Kindergarten of the Air that flourished in the late 1940s and 1950s. She now has a craft shop called Sidelines near Rosemont.)

Needles grouped his "letters" into three plays: Letters from Wingfield Farm, Wingfield's Progress, and Wingfield's Folly. Thanks to the Haliburton Highlands Concert Series, actor Rod Beattie brought the cast of characters in Wingfield's Progress to the Haliburton Legion on Sunday, October 3rd. (This was Beattie's second trip to the Highlands; a few seasons back, he performed Letters from Wingfield Farm to such approval that the audience requested a return engagement.)

And what an array of characters he creates! There's Walt, of course — inexperienced at farming, learning as he goes, reliant on the wisdom and tolerance of his much amused neighbours, but never giving up on his dream of making a living as an honest-to-goodness farmer.

There's Freddie, his neighbour on the farm next door; Maggie, Freddie's sister, who keeps house for her brother; Willie and Dave, Maggie's feckless sons; Freddie's hired man, Jimmy; the Squire, another farming neighbour; Mr. McKelvey, owner of the general store, better known as Dry Cry for his endless whining; the Reeve of the township and two irretrievably geriatric councillors more concerned with whose ancestor got here first than with any item on the current agenda; a wily town clerk who makes sure notices of zoning changes on an adjacent property are mailed the very day the snowplow knocks over Walt's mailbox; Don, the deep-voiced, successful dairy farmer; and Darcy Dixon, the condominium developer from the city on whose dreams of wealth the story hinges.

Beattie employs an elastic face, a gift for physical comedy, and a boundless repertoire of vocal mannerisms to bring each of these individuals vividly, hilariously, and endearingly to life. His range is astonishing. It's not just a gift for comedy, either. There are poignant moments where his control is equally superb and equally affecting. In spite of having done the show hundreds of times (at least), his performance is fresh and lively and authentic.

The audience, of course, had a wonderful time. The prevailing sound in the hall was the laughter of recognition — particularly in those moments when the plot focussed on the self-serving intricacies of small-town politics.

There were only two things wrong with the evening. It went by too quickly and it was a one-night stand. But audiotapes of the trilogy are available. Or you can get the CBC Radio habit and wait for Walt to come around again.

The Haliburton Highlands Concert Series is offering two more presentations this season. Pianist Natalya Tyominka will perform on November 7. The Elmer Iseler Singers will perform on February 27. Tickets are available by calling 447-2509 or 286-1218.

HALIBURTON HIGHLANDS OUTDOORS ASSOCIATION

Deerhound Lost-and-Found

This year the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is running a service for deer & moose hunters and any person who may find a lost hound.

If you find a lost hound during this year's moose or deer hunt, first check the dog's collar for an identification plate with the owners name and phone number. If the dog has a number clipped or painted on it, you may contact the owner using the list below, or drop the dog off at a Lost-and-Found Centre. If the dog has no number you may drop the dog off at any one of the nine Deerhound Lost-and-Found Centres listed below.

If you are the owner of a lost hound and are not registered with the Association, you should call any of the Lost-and-Found Centres. At the end of this year's hunt, unclaimed dogs will be turned over to the nearest municipal pound. Following the hunt, please call your municipal office.

Camps registered with the Lost-and-Found should display their camp number at their road entrance. To claim your dog at a Lost-and-Found Centre you must provide proper identification and pay a $5.00 per day boarding fee.

The Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is an Association dedicated to the outdoor sport of hunting and fishing and currently has about 500 members. The Association thanks those individuals and businesses who have volunteered to act as a drop-off centre. If you wish to join the Association please contact Steve Berry at 286-1826 (home) or 286-2750 (business).

Pave it away

Construction workers put the finishing touches on a new curb along Main Street. The road in downtown Minden has been undergoing repairs for several weeks, culminating Friday with the new curbs and first layer of blacktop.

Little Theatre has full line-up

The Highlands Little Theatre is pleased to present "The Melville Boys", a light-hearted drama by Norm Foster, on November 3 to 6 at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

The play is about Owen and Lee Melville who arrive at their lakeside cabin toting beer and bonhomie and anticipating nothing more strenuous than a weekend of fishing. However, their well-laid plans are thrown out of whack by the arrival of two sisters, Loretta and Mary. The women stay the night and are the catalysts for a very funny tender and unsentimental look at what happens when four lives in transition touch common ground.

All performances start at 8 p.m.

I know I can find that needle. It's in here some-where

Now YOU CAN HELP THE ENVIRONMENT FROM THE COMFORT OF YOUR OWN HOME.

Introducing Pureflame†, the environmentally sensitive heating oil from Shell that's unlike any other heating oil in Canada. With Pureflame you can enjoy all the comfort of heating with oil, with less environmental impact.

A special additive called Ferrocene makes Pureflame burn more completely than regular heating oil.

So in conventional furnaces Pureflame can cut harmful smoke emissions by up to 50%, reduce soot by up to 46% and reduce your home's fuel consumption up to 2%.*

It's time to turn green and heat clean with Pureflame. Call the Shell agent listed below for more information.

*Based on controlled laboratory tests in a furnace equipped with a conventional head burner. Actual results will vary depending on burner and furnace design, fuel consumption, operating conditions and other factors. Benefits will not be as dramatic with a properly maintained flame retention head burner. In one test a fuel reduction of 6% was achieved.

Coboconk OPP investigating thefts

The following incidents were reported by the Coboconk OPP detachment for the period of Sept. 27 to Oct. 4.

Gate Thefts

Three farm gates were stolen from field entrances on Highway 35 some time between Sept. 27 and Sept. 30. The thieves unscrewed the hinges and removed the 16-foot steel gates from their entranceways in the Peace Valley area.

It is possible that a passing motorist may have noticed these thefts in progress. Anyone with information is asked to contact the Coboconk OPP at 454-3311 or Lindsay and Area Crime Stoppers at 1-800-563-8477.

Break-in

At about 1 p.m. on October 1, a cottage on Long Point on the west shore of Balsam Lake was forcibly entered. Stolen from inside was a number of household items, as well as a Craftsman drill, sabre saw and VCR.

At the time of the break-in, someone noticed a white Dodge van in the area. The van had tinted windows along the sides, white hubbed wheels and a silver luggage rack on the roof. There may be a red or orange pinstripe down the side of the van.

Anyone with information about this van is asked to call the Coboconk OPP or Lindsay Crime Stoppers.

Flowers and plants needed to beautify Hyland Crest

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Would anyone digging up perennial flower plants this fall donate some to Hyland Crest? More plants are needed to improve the landscape. Plants can be given to Jean Robson of our Auxiliary. Any donations would be greatly appreciated.

Once again I'll be writing about the activities of Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home. I have been on a visit to my cousins in Saskatchewan and Alberta - Harold and Nina (LaRue) Bluett and Mable (LaRue) Clay.

Therefore, I'll only give an outline of what happened while I was gone the past two weeks.

Doris took some residents to the Royal Canadian Legion in Minden for lunch on September 22 and the Kinmount ACW provided and served the Thursday Tea Party.

On Friday a special video "A Walk Around Town With Dick Kirkwood" was shown and the annual "Volunteers' Appreciation Tea" was held.

The Hyland Crest Auxiliary held their September meeting on the 27th in the auditorium.

On September 29, William Mac showed slides of photos he took in Europe.

The Thursday Tea Party was entertained by Darlene Compton and was enjoyed by everyone.

Our condolences are sent to the relatives and friends of Mrs. Isabella Eastman who passed away on September 23

These ladies celebrated their birthdays last month: Mary Currah, Ann Collison and Cora Upton. Happy Birthday to these three ladies

Loners on wheels band together

by Shirley Kuni

Like to camp?
Are you alone?
Do you have wheels?

If this is you, but you're not aware of LOWS, then read on. LOWS is a wonderful organization with over 3,000 members, mostly retired, in the US and Canada

Loners On Wheels is comprised of people from all walks of life, who enjoy camping, travelling and other people, but are left alone due to the loss of a partner and don't want to give up the pleasures of sharing ideas over a meal or talks around the campfire.

I first became aware of them by accident on my way home from Algonquin Park, travelling along Highway #60. A large ice cream cone sign jumped out on the highway in front of me. Of course, I had to swerve into the parking lot of the store to avoid hitting the sign, and out of sheer panic, ordered a double decker cone to calm my nerves.

The soothing process of licking brought my hearing into focus. I was surrounded by the mellow singing of a southern accent. I wasn't eavesdropping mind you, but within a few moments I learned there was a rally of Loners On Wheels from all over North America camping just up the road. My curiousity was piqued.

The feeling I had as I pulled into the camp grounds called Algonquin Trails was one of the joys of living. I saw men and women doing nothing but chatting, or busily getting ready for what they called a "silent auction." They all had one thing in common. All the varied faces of these strangers were smiling. They seemed to be getting a great deal of pleasure from the company of one another.

I approached a fellow with a Sheriff's badge pinned to his blue plaid shirt and inquired what his job entailed. He laughed and explained: "It's not really a job, more of a humorous policing. If someone is not wearing their badge stating their name and origin, they get a whopping 25 cent fine. Sometimes a joker will purposely take another's fork or knife, so I have to slap them with a 'disturbing the peace' fine of 25 cents. All in good fun. It's my pleasure madame." His name is Bert and he is from Bracebridge, or so his badge said.

Loners on Wheels is an organization that bands together single people who like to travel.

I decided to explore, so I went walking along the path between everything from tents to vans to 10-wheelers. A young lady in her mid '60s came strolling along, so we struck up a conversation. Her name is Gladys and she is from Virginia (badge). She stood about 5'2" and was wearing a baseball cap and jeans. She explained how she travels and sleeps in her van, from Montana to Florida to Ontario, when she is not in her home in Virginia.

She went on. "My friend Edna over there drives that 10-wheeler and pulls that little red car behind it." She's also grey haired. Wow! I was in awe over these women.

I found the nearest picnic table and sat trying to digest everything I was seeing and hearing, when two ladies came smiling over to me. Ursula, from Bala, is the Ontario chapter's president, and Marjorie, from West Sutton, the camp co-ordinator.

They very willingly answered a few questions explaining, "We have people here for this week-long 'rally' from Colorado, Florida, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, and many other states, plus all over Ontario, Quebec and even Alberta. Approximately 80 to 90 people, the oldest being 83 and the youngest in her mid '50s, have breakfast and dinner together each day. Marjorie here waited each noon hour for the game LOYO to begin. She always seemed to miss it, until someone explained to her on the third day that LOYO means Lunch On Your Own." We all laughed.

Ursula continued, "We have excursions into the surrounding areas wherever we meet. For example, yesterday we went into Algonquin Park for a hike and canoe ride, and today we're shopping. Tonight is out to dinner and then a dance. No one is obligated, we all do whatever we wish, together or alone. Sometimes we have a guest speaker. Last night the OPP came to talk to us about road safety and travelling tips."

Sounded fair to me.

Marjorie continued. "Loners On Wheels is not a lonely hearts club nor a match-making service. Members must conduct themselves as unattached singles. As a group, we enjoy camp-outs, cookouts, pot-luck meals, campfires, tours and companionship. Members come from all walks of life, all types of careers, and varied economic levels. The main purpose of the club is to give single campers the opportunity to camp with others in the same circumstances. We enjoy one another's company. Whether we're caravaning or travelling alone, we're not lonely anymore.

Sounded good to me.

I said goodbye to the ladies and thanked them for their info. Strolling back to my car, I met Don from Michigan (badge), "looking for a golf partner."

I drove away with a lightness of heart and a fresh awareness of what people of the recycled teenage generation can share in the giving of themselves to one another. I was sure that the feeling of happiness and good fun hung over these people wherever they camped.

They were able to get back into the swing of things. Pick up and get on with living life by giving and receiving the joy of laughter, the sound of chit-chat over a meal, and the pleasure of sharing around the campfire and the blossoms of new friendships each camp-out.

The gift they have is for all to share

It's for those who love the morning air,

For those who love the morning sun

For those of us who just love fun,

For those with adventure still in their hearts.

Trent-Severn Waterways forecasts few problems

Watershed water levels and flows are approaching normal for this time of year.

The reservoir lakes in the Haliburton Highlands are the exception as they averaged 52.8 per cent of their full capacity on September 27, approximately 5 per cent above long term average levels.

The outlook for the short term likely doesn't hold any surprises as the lake are well positioned for wetter conditions. As well, a dry spell would not likely cause adverse conditions for boaters and cottagers.

a War Amps video series

"In a war, everyone suffers... we must never let it happen again."

The War Amps believes it has a responsibility to warn younger generations about the true horrors of war. Governments must be held accountable for their actions

Reflections
by David Suzuki

When I was a boy, my parents banged home the message that growing up meant taking RESPONSIBILITY. And, they taught me, once a responsibility is accepted or assigned, if I did my best, I would be rewarded with appreciation.

But there was a hook — I also carried the burden of ACCOUNTABILITY for what I did. Fibbing or evading would only gain temporary relief and I would have to face up to it in the end.

As a father, I find myself parroting my parents' messages to my children. But these days it's hard to be credible because my daughters can see all around them in the real world that responsibility, accountability and honesty are readily evaded without paying the consequences. And as my daughter, Severn asks: "How can we be any different from adults when you are our role models? You teach us how to behave by what you do."

Children are concerned about what they know is the destruction of their future and some feel strongly enough to be arrested for protesting. Yet they see people who are lionized for being successful while evading accountability for the ecological impact of their activities.

Youth know industry executives don't go to jail for promulgating policies that destroy the ozone layer, release radioactive tailings into water or permanently destroy old growth forests. So where is the fairness and accountability?

I was taught in school that we have the best political system in the world. In a democracy, we elect people to represent and lead us into the future. The general public pays for government programs knowing that we are their beneficiaries.

Politicians deserve to bask in the spotlight when they carry out their duties well. But they seem to have it both ways because they also bear no accountability when they make bad decisions that could have been avoided. Careening toward the next election, politicians have again pushed the environment aside as an issue marginal to the state of the economy. But who will we hold accountable when the price of today's failure to act becomes apparent in the future? Mulroney is no longer accountable for what his two governments failed to do.

What of the environment ministers appointed since 1988 when Mulroney announced the environment was one of his major priorities? Lucien Bouchard quickly jettisoned his concern over global warming's "threat to civilization" for the cause of Quebec independence. Robert de Cotret brought in an inadequate Green Plan very late, was shuffled out of the portfolio and has now retired. Jean Charest defended the Green Plan all the while his government gutted it in the name of fiscal responsibility and now has gone on to bigger political pastures. Who will be accountable years from now for the inaction on cleaning up the Great Lakes, protecting disappearing old-growth forests or reducing greenhouse gases?

While environment minister, Lucien Bouchard told me in 1989 that "global warming endangers the very survival of our species," yet he could not cancel Hibernia and other oil megaprojects because it was a commitment made by the last government. "We cannot annihilate the past," he told me. Yet once switched from a portfolio, a former minister is no longer interested, let alone accountable, for his past performance while his replacement can protest: "I had nothing to do with it."

And now Prime Minister Kim Campbell, having served faithfully in the past cabinet, boldly states that history and the past do not count in this election. New faces, new positions and new rhetoric now obliterate the past and with it, any accountability.

In 1987, the United Nations Commission on Environment and Development under Gro Harlem Brundtland published Our Common Future, documenting the perilous state of the Earth and the need to act quickly and profoundly to get off our destructive path. Mulroney and the premiers endorsed the Brundtland Report and pledged themselves to implementing its recommendations. Less than a year later, it was clear there was no follow through. Who can we hold accountable? In June 1992, over 100 world leaders and representatives of 180 countries gathered at Rio de Janeiro for the Earth Summit. Again we heard the warnings of deep ecological crisis as politicians paraded before the cameras pledging their commitments. Yet even Maurice Strong, the secretary general of the Earth Summit and an inveterate optimist, has had to admit that there has been a terrible backsliding on the commitments made at Rio. Isn't there anyone we can blame?

I fear for my children who listen to me because they love me. But they are learning about the real world by watching what adults do. And they are confused by the contradictions between my old fashioned lessons about responsibility, honesty and accountability and what they see going on. I'm afraid they find much to prove me wrong.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Shirley Stamp would like to thank each and everyone of you who sent cards, food, flowers, prayers, and especially the visits which Mom enjoyed having each day. A special thanks to Dr. Holliday-Rhodes for finding out what was wrong with our Mom and caring, especially comforting her till her last days. Also a special thanks to all the nurses and staff at the Minden Hospital for the care you gave Mom. You did a great job. Thanks to Gord Monk's Funeral Home and staff. A very special thanks to Hazel, Velda, Gala, Fran, Laurie and Sis whom all made it a daily routine to visit our Mom. We really appreciated it. Thank-you all very much.

On behalf of the Country Kin Folks Craft Exhibitors we would like to thank all those who came and enjoyed the sale. The winners of the free draw were Lacey Johnson (sweatshirt), Chris Briggs (angel), and Ashleigh Packer (carved boot). Thanks to Marta, Lesley and Thelma for donating the prizes. See you next year.

We want to say thank you to Lisa and David for putting on our beautiful 25th Wedding Anniversary party. Many thanks to everyone who contributed to make our Special Day a great success. Thanks to everyone for gifts, money, cards, to those who so generously helped out with the beautiful supper, those who brought food, worked in the kitchen, helped run the bar, and to everyone who came and made our 25th Anniversary a day we will never forget. Thanks also to Shirley for taping, to Steve for being our camera man, and to Clara for all her phone calls and work. Hopefully we didn't miss anyone, but if we did please rest assured everyone's efforts were more than greatly appreciated. God Bless you all.
Tom & Marilyn Bagshaw

Entered into God's presence, at Fairview Mennonite Home, Cambridge, on Monday, October 4, 1993 age 87 years.

He served in his early years of ministry as pastor of the Mannheim Mennonite Church and then for many years was involved in missionary work in the Haliburton area for the Associated Gospel Churches of Canada. In addition to his parents, he was predeceased by three brothers, Delton, Edward and Wilfred and three sisters, Vinetta Feick, Edith Bachert and Edna Schiedel. Rev. Schmitt's family received friends at the Edward R. Good Funeral Home, Waterloo. The funeral service was held at the Northside Community Church, 55 Leonard St., Kitchener, on Friday October 8 at 2 p.m. with Rev. V.J. IN MEMORIAM

McAFEE - In memory of W. Gordon, a loving husband, father and grandfather who passed away October 12, 1990.
This day is remembered
And quietly kept.
No words are needed
We will never forget
Sadly missed by wife Margaret and family.

JOHNSTON - Myles Ellwood. In loving memory of a dear son & brother, who was tragically killed October 11, 1968.
There is a bridge of memories,
From here to heaven above;
That keeps you very close to me,
It is called the bridge of love.
As time goes by without you,
And months turn into years,
They hold a billion memories,
And a million tears.
To me you were so special,
What more is there to say,
Except that I wish with all my heart son
That you were here today.
Dearly loved and sadly missed by Mom, brother and sisters.
